Piano

Pedagogical pieces by William Gillock, Kevin Olson, Jon George, etc. may be used for contemporary literature*.

Contact Dawn Remtema with questions about other twentieth century pedagogical composers.*

Voice:

Age-appropriate songs from material such as folk songs, art songs, Italian arias, or theater songs from legitimate music theater productions and musicals.

Students in Primer and Class I may enter with songs of contrasting styles from the same historical era.

Class IV students are strongly encouraged to sing one song in a foreign language.

Teachers may accompany their students.

Instrumental: (strings, brass, and woodwinds)

See repertoire requirements above.

Student Ensembles:

See repertoire requirements above.

Two or more student performers in any combination of disciplines.

Teachers may accompany their students, but only student accompanists will be adjudicated as part of the ensemble.

Memorization is not required.

1. Piano, Voice, Instrumental and Ensemble Codes are below.
2. Age is determined as of January 24, 2020.
3. Ensemble Classes will be determined based on the age of the oldest student member of the group as of January 24, 2020.
4. Please note performance time limits in the chart above.
5. Auditions will be open to students and parents, and others where space permits. PPMTA teachers are encouraged to observe in order to learn how to better prepare students.
6. Each student will receive a written evaluation and a certificate of participation. Judges will give a rating of: Highly Superior; Superior; Excellent; or Good.
7. The Festival Committee will select students for placement in audition categories by a random method.

9. The judges may choose up to three winners and two honorable mentions in each class. Teachers will be notified by email of their students' results and of the piece selected by the judges to be performed at the Winners' Recital on Sunday. Each teacher is responsible for notifying their winning students of the selection to be performed and the time and place of the Winners' Recital.
10. Each winner must be available to perform his or her piece (selected by the judges) in the assigned recital on Sunday afternoon, or the student will be disqualified. Winners and Honorable Mentions will receive trophies. Only winners will perform in the Winners Recitals, but Honorable Mentions are encouraged to attend the recital to receive their awards.
11. No student may repeat his or her performance of a given piece in subsequent years. The teacher is responsible for enforcing this rule. Teachers should be present at their students' recital(s) on Sunday. All PPMTA Standing Rules apply!
